OUR NEW RAILROAD!

Confirmation of Its Construction as Originally Told in The Press—A Dry Goods Merchant Visits a Zinc Mine—Rich Strike at The Lucile Mine.

A METEOR WEIGHING FIFTY TONS.

The Courier-Journal says, in a very lengthy article on the new railroad:

Plans are taking definite shape whereby the Illinois Central will accomplish the ambition of a decade. The desire for a direct route over its own rails to the Atlantic seaboard has been well known by railroad men for years. A deal is almost closed whereby the Tennessee Central will soon pass into its control, and that closed, the Illinois Central will build a line from Eldorado to Marion, Ky., thus establishing direct lines from Chicago and St. Louis to Nashville, and paving the way for a transcontinental trunk line before the expiration of a year's time.

Within the past week it has been stated with assurance that the Illinois Central has secured control of the Tennessee Central although the officials of both roads refuse to confirm the report. The Tennessee Central also has plans on foot which can be best brought to a successful termination as an independent line, among which are the expansion of its terminal concessions in the city of Nashville, as contemplated in a bill that was introduced at the last meeting of Nashville's City Council, and the collection of the subscription of $1,000,000, which Nashville voted toward the construction of the road.

Confirmation of the Illinois Central's ambition in that direction is found in the statement that the company has decided to build from its terminus at Eldorado, Ill. to a connection with its Chicago line at Marion, Ky. That link in connection with the western division of the Tennessee Central would give a direct line between St. Louis and Nashville as it is possible to secure.

It will be remembered that the survey for this short line passes through the Reed Mining company's city lots.

The Miller carbonate of zinc property of the Marion Mineral company was visited the other day by the leading dry goods merchant of Western Kentucky. It is well sometimes to have the opinion of a layman to whom rocks mean but little, and who can give his opinion without regard to any thing except volume of material and values. The gentleman, who is widely known throughout the State tells a PRESS representative:

"I had heard so much of the great values of the zinc ores around Marion that having an opportunity I drove down to what is known as the Miller Mine of the Marion Mineral company. I of course had no idea of what to expect in the way of a mine or its ores. I found a great open canal that had been made by plows and scrapers. The ore, an extremely heavy, brown rock, was being raised from both ends of this canal or cut and piled by itself. In the bottom, or floor, immense boulders of the same kind of rock, with their heads sticking through the earth a foot or more, were in evidence throughout the long opening. These boulders would, I should think, weigh anywhere from 400 to 1200 pounds each, and I was told that the dirt or sand in and around these great masses was nearly as valuable in zinc as the boulders themselves.

"I know very little about mining but if that heavy brown rock brings anywhere from fifteen to twenty dollars per ton, as reliable gentlemen tell me it does, I should say that this property in itself would pay exceedingly strong dividends on a large capitalization, if the company did not own or mine another foot, and that they can not possibly mine out the present ore showing in fifty years."

The firmness of the spelter market in the face of the recent decline in other metals is one of the most encouraging features of the summer's development in the zinc industry. It is true that the unfortunate conditions which prevailed through the flooded Mississippi Valley lent some strength to the situation, but it cannot be denied that the demand for spelter this summer has been greater than ever before in its history. The unfortunate reduction in output in the Joplin district has had much to do with maintaining prices on the present satisfactory basis and there is no apparent reason to look for any marked reduction in either ore or spelter prices during the remainder of the year. There may come a lull during the fall, but in the event that the consumption holds firmly to the present basis—as is now indicated by the demand for August deliveries, the weakness will be only temporary.

A drift is a term generally inclusive of all horizontal mine openings. In a more restricted but common use it is a horizontal mine opening of dimensions convenient for working out the rock and for use for transportation or travel after completion. [Where it has its start at a station it is termed a level; if at about right angles to the trend of the ore body it is called a cross-cut; if outside the parallel to the trend it is sometimes called a gallery. Working horizontally in the ore body wider than a track and passage-way, as in a drift placer mine, the entire opening would be called a drift; the face of rock, ore or gravel being mined would be a breast, and the track and manway opening through the drift would be a gang-way.

A very high grade of Jack in massive form is being raised at the Lucile mine. So strong is this ore of zinc that it would bear shipping direct to the smelter. From its general makeup it should run at least 56 per cent metallic zinc, or within some 10 per cent. of the highest grade that nature puts up. It is a splendid outcome of a long, tedious, expensive period of work and exemplifies what persistence, backed by cash will do on any one of our known fissure veins.

The citizens of Carrsville ought to celebrate surely if the story telegraphed from Owensboro to the Courier-Journal is true, about the finding of a body of 98 per cent zinc.

But the trouble with that sort of a peach story is that 98 per cent zinc isn't obtainable except through a smelter. The class of zinc found in this district, and as a rule it's the very best nature puts up anywhere, could not exceed 67 per cent. zinc and 33 per cent. sulphur, and it very rarely reaches that per centage here or anywhere else. Still we are glad that the celebration is still on.

Apropos of meteors, the largest celestial body that ever visited the earth so far as known was recently discovered by Prof. Ward in Mexico. It is a mass of solid iron and nickel, weighing about fifty tons. It was found by the Professor in a cornfield, half buried—a large boulder of black iron, shaped like a great ham, thirteen feet thick. Its composition was 89 per cent iron, 7 per cent nickel, a little cobalt, phosphorus, sulphur and silicon.

There is a good deal said about being from Missouri and want to see it yourself. The Columbia separating plant is from Missouri and we all want to see it started up, but the Missouri mechanics who are completing it don't seem to be working over time to any alarming extent to hurry it along. Perhaps we are unduly impatient but the Missouri people take it more easily.

The aggregate amount of fire-clay that Salem is sending from the Stevens property is greater in tonnage than all of the rest of our ores. Many days seventy-five to one hundred teams are engaged in the transportation of this product. Each team will average some two tons and the limited track room at the depot is sorely taxed to make room for this immense output.

E. Goldberg, a Russian, has been granted a patent on a new process for electrolytically coating iron with zinc, which consists of forming a bath containing a zinc compound with a compound having nitrogen bound to an organic radical and introducing the iron into the bath and passing the electric current through the same in the presence of a zinc anode.

The Courier-Journal, in its Monday's issue, gives a list of the railroads under construction and contract. In the list contracted for is 12 miles from Cave-in-Rock to Marion, Ky.

In the workingshaft of the Lady Farmer mine, owned by the Henderson syndicate a slight pinch has been driven through at 30 feet depth and the Jack, or sulphide of zinc is becoming much stronger than when first uncovered, as the crevice becomes much wider with depth.

It has developed during the past fortnight that one of the heaviest producers of zinc ore in Leadville has refused to make contracts for its ore during the next twelve months at the prices which have ruled for its product during the past six months.

Ore shoots do not always extend upward to the surface, nor, having been found in depth, are they always found to extend to indefinite depth; but they have limitations in all directions—depth, height, width and length.

The Kentucky Fluor Spar company are beating all previous records in the tonnage of fluorspar delivered on the railroad at three shipping points.

The Albany (Ind.) Mining and Investment company, of Salem, have opened up a very strong showing of fluorspar, some eight feet in width, on the John Butler farm.

TYPHOID FEVER,

Its Causes—Complete Immunity From Disease Impossible.

Dr. James C. Bayles, in World's Work for July writes:

"It has often been said of the typhoid fever that one may eat it and drink it, but he can not breathe it."

"The period of maximum susceptibility seems to be between the ages of 18 and 45. Good general health is the best safeguard known against typhoid; and it should not be forgotten that good health is inconsistent with imprudence in habit or diet."

"The most frequent cause of typhoid fever," he says, "is found in polluted drinking water. It should be sterilized by boiling. It must not then be contaminated by ice permitted to mingle with and melt in it."

Milk is in many respects the most dangerous article of food. It swarms with bacteria and should never be used unsterilized—that is, unboiled."

"Flies are industrious agents in the dissemination of the secondary infection of the disease. After wandering about all sorts of unclean places and picking up bacteria, they come in at open windows and doors and light upon the food prepared for the family. A fly in the butter may be presumed to leave behind him whatever parasite micro organisms he carried on his feet and legs, or to plant them there. The fly is also the agent of a more direct conveyance of typhoid bacilla in the spreading of secondary infection. He has a fondness for lighting on the lips of persons, sick or well, and every human being indulges more or less in the habit of wetting the lips with the tongue. In this way what the fly leaves behind him may be taken up by saliva and passed directly into the alimentary canal, there to do whatever mischief may be its natural function. To be effectually guarded against typhoid fever one must keep flies, mosquitoes and all other insects out of the house and away from his person."

"Digital infection is recognized as one of the many ways in which typhoid fever is carried to persons otherwise unexposed. From balustrades, door knobs, and a thousand other things which one may touch, he may get the bacilli on his fingers, and however neat and careful he may be, the path from the finger to the intestinal canal is usually that of the least resistance."

Dr. Bayles concludes, therefore, that complete immunity from typhoid fever demands an impossible vigilance. Life would scarcely be worth the trouble and anxiety required to observe all the precautions necessary to give absolute immunity. Dealt with in a large way by the local authorities, typhoid, however, is declared to be "one of the most readily controllable and preventable of diseases."

TO BE ERECTED IN ENGLAND.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Pilgrims Club in London, England, a committee was appointed to give effect to the recent suggestion to erect a statue to George Washington in London. It was decided that the subscription should be entirely confined to British subjects. Archdeacon Sinclair, in submitting the plan to the society said:

"Englishmen have at last fully recognized the great quality of Washington. I feel assured that nothing would be more popular in this country than such a tribute to that great man of English birth who has done so much for the world's history, not only for the young nation across the sea, but for Great Britain as well."

Archdeacon announced that he was authorized to offer a plan for the statue in St. Paul's Cathedral.

WORLD'S RICHEST MEN.

John D. Rockefeller is now classed as a billionaire, and reported to be the richest man in the world. Before the South African war Alfred Bell, of Kimberly was, according to an English list published in 1900, the world's only billionaire. Li Hong Chang, of China, stood second on the list with $500,000,000 and John D. Rockefeller third with $250,000,000. Only seven others were given fortunes of over 1,000,000,000. Prince Demidoff, of Russia, $200,000,000; Cornelius J. Vanderbilt, of New York, $125,000,000; Andrew Carnegie $120,000,000; and William K. Vanderbilt, John Jacob Astor, Wm. Rockefeller and William Waldorf Astor each $100,000,000. Lord Rothschild, of England, was credited with $75,000,000, and Alphonse Rothschild, of Paris, and Baron Rothschild, of Vienna, each $70,000,000. The English Dukes of Devonshire, Bedford, Norfolk and Buccleugh each had $50,000,000. Alfred Krupp, gun-maker, had $45,000,000, Cnus Spreckles and P. D. Armour each $40,000,000, Collis Huntington, George J. Gould and J. Pierpont Morgan each $35,000,000, and Marshall Field, Harold McCormick, W. L. Elkins and James J. Hill, each $25,000,000, all of them ranking in wealth with Russian and Austrian Princes.

Fifty years ago the millionaires were confined mainly to the Princes and Dukes and bankers of Europe. The American millionaire came with the era of development of railways and the mineral and manufacturing resources of the country. Since the census year of 1900 there have been great changes, Mr. Rockefeller having quadrupled his wealth, and the South African millionaires having lost ground. Many Americans who were simply hard workers 20 and 30 years ago have advanced to the rank of millionaires.

The Kentucky State Building.

The contract for the erection of the Kentucky State building at the World's Fair in St. Louis next year has just been awarded to Caldwell & Drake, the firm which is erecting both the Agricultural and Horticultural buildings, and ground will be broken this week.

The announcement of this fact will disclose to many people who have not been keeping pace with the work of the Association, that it has been pushing matters with energy and is beginning to reap tangible results. The Association has raised already about $30,000, and with nine months in which to labor before the opening of the Fair, is already assured of the ultimate success of its plans. Not only has the Association completed its arrangements for the erection of a building which will be a credit to the State, but it is industriously pushing the work of collecting exhibits which will reflect the commercial and industrial resources of the State in a striking way.

The building will be a most attractive one, and will be located on a site which is the best yet assigned to any State, being so situated as to constitute a part of what is called the "Main Picture" of the Fair. It is very near to the Government building and everybody who goes to an exposition goes to the Government building many times. It is situated at the intersection of two main avenues, one leading from the Government building to the cascades and restaurants, and the other to the Grand Basin. Nearby is to be the extensive German display, and on the other side the outdoor mining exhibit. This is to be one of the most attractive feature of the exposition.

AUGUST WEATHER.

Prof Hicks Predicts Some Severe Weather for the Month.

Some very disagreeable weather is looked for in August, according to Hicks' predictions:

Regular storm disturbances will be due from the 1st to the 4th of August. The probabilities are that the natural warmth to be expected at this season will grow into a crisis of summer heat about the 1st, 2d and 3rd, to be followed progressively from the west by low barometer, threatening clouds and severe blustering. Local rains—some of them quite heavy—may attend these storms, but the general supply and diffusion of rains over the country promise to be short and poorly distributed. Rising barometer and change to more pleasant conditions for a few days will be natural behind the perturbances at this time, extending eastward over the country by the 11th and 5th.

A reactionary storm period exists on the 6th, 7th and 8th, during which days look for increase of warmth, falling barometer and marked tendency to black clouds, thunder and storminess. These disturbances will culminate on and touching the 8th, some central to northern parts of the country being visited by severe summer squalls. Change to rising barometer, westerly winds and cooler will press in from the west and north, as low barometer and storm moves eastward out of the way, bringing partial respite from summer heat for a few days.

One of the "heated terms" of the month will appear about the 11th to the 16th. At the beginning of this period the warm wave will start in western sections, attended by low and falling barometer; easterly to southerly winds will increase the heat over all sections east of the actual storm centers. As the low barometer moves eastward, threatening clouds with severe local storms will visit many sections, with favorable conditions for some very generous midsummer rains.

This greatly increases the probability of rain from about the 11th to 15th. While the heat waves and storms are still passing central and eastern parts of the country a change to cooler will be advancing from the west and north, so that by the 15th and 16th most parts of the country will have felt the change to cooler weather.

There will be perceptible reactions to rising temperature, falling barometer, and a return to cloudiness and storms on and touching the 17th and 18th, followed by another return to cooler, more pleasant weather, about the 19th to 21st.

If the perturbations of the Mars period, which is to be central on the 20th should take on the nature of a violent atmospheric displacement—a result rather to be expected—the regular storm period extending from the 21st to the 27th, will develop some violent and dangerous West India storms. The situation will become more critical from the fact that the moon is in perigee on the 21st, new on the 22d, and on the celestial equator on the 24th. The earth will also have entered its autumnal equinox at this time. We do not hesitate to warn those who live along the coasts and on the seas and islands directly exposed to the fury of West India hurricanes and cyclones, of the possibility of such visitations at this time.

General storm conditions will develop over the country, and inland storms of more or less intensity may reasonably be expected about the 24th to 27th. If equatorial storms appear in the south at this time, reaching regions as far north as our extreme southern states, phenomenally cool weather will follow the storms over central to northwestern states. Such results need not be a surprise to our readers.

The 29th and 30th will bring a reaction to storm conditions, and more or less storminess and rain will result to many localities. Rising barometer and change to cooler weather generally will mark the closing hours of the month.

The whole month of August will feel more or less the influence of the equinox of the planet Mars.

PLENTY OF QUAILS.

The quail hunters in Kentucky expect this fall to be one of the best seasons they have had for many years. Quail do not migrate and the hunters can tell in the season how the hunting will be during the fall. The past winter and spring in this section have been very favorable for the breeding of the quail. Snow did not stay on the ground long enough at one time to keep them from feeding or to starve any of them.

The spring has been most satisfactory for nesting. In some sections of the country birds have been drowned by floods or excessive rains, but in Kentucky there has been no trouble of this kind. A few young birds may have been drowned during the heavy rains of the early spring, but there are still an unusual number of birds alive.

Quail hatch two broods each year, so that the second one is just large enough to shoot when the season opens.

Collector Franks Outdone.

Owensboro, Ky., July 30.—Collector Franks will have no vacancy to fill on account of the marriage of Miss Estelle Lawton, bond clerk to Mr. Dudley Lindsey, clerk of the Federal court. Mr. Franks thought that the marriage would vacate the position and had selected a man for the place, which pays a thousand a year, but when they went to make a move the bride official threw down before him a letter from the civil service commission and the Treasury Department telling her she could hold on. She has held the place for the past nine years, and job is greatly coveted by a number of young Republicans and by the Collector as well.

Mrs. Lawton-Lindsey is a brilliant young woman, and has proved herself more than a match for the politicians with whom she has come in contact.

CLAY KEPT ON HIS HAT.

In the Metropolitan Music of Art in New York City is hung a massive painting of the court of Russia at the time Cassin M. Clay was the representative of this republic thereat. The scene is one of unusual brilliancy, portrays the Czar in his imperial robes, with feathers flying from his headdress, while around him are stationed all foreign ambassadors attended upon by his court. In the picture Clay and the Czar are the only two left standing with their heads covered. It is said that Clay was requested to remove his hat in deference to being in the presence of the Czar, but this he flatly refused to do, saying:

"I only take off my hat to those who take off their hat to me."

Had the Czar have uncovered his head it is to be presumed that Clay would have followed suit, but so long as the Russian monarch kept his head covered before Clay the latter would not uncover before him.—Lexington Democrat.

LIVINGSTON COUNTY.

Charles Grassham After State Senatorship—Two Deaths.

At his home near Lola, Mr. Leroy May, one of the most prominent men and most successful farmers of the county, died after an illness of several months.

He had been suffering with the drapay and had seen himself steadily decline in health until death came to relieve him. His friends had taken him to Dawson with the hope of doing him some good but finally seeing that death was sure he requested that he be taken to his home, to die on his native soil.

Mr. Leroy May was the father of attorney Clarence L. May, who was for some time city attorney of Smithland and who died there last April.

"Aunt" Juliet Moxley, an aged and highly respected lady of near Vicksburg, died last week.

Mrs. Moxley was about 80 years of age and had lived in this county all her life. Her acquaintance among the older people, was wide and her friendship was coextensive with her acquaintance.

Mr. C. C. Grassham, of Smithland, is a candidate for state senator. The fight in this district is very warm. The Banner in an editorial says:

Livingston county will send an enthusiastic Grassham delegation to the Senatorial convention at Carlehan August 7. Our Democrats will go there demanding that which belongs to us—the candidate for State Senator this time. Our county will put before the convention a Democrat who as State Senator would be a credit to the district, and reflect honor upon the State; a man whose ability and fearlessness as a campaigner has been demonstrated and known throughout Kentucky, he having given his time and money in the service of his party for five years past; one who is identified with no faction of the party, and could, therefore, command its full vote; an able, aggressive, "scrapping" Democrat—the Hon. Charles C. Grassham, of the county of Livingston—the man for the position from the county which has not had a Senator for twenty long years.

GOV. BECKHAM'S CAMPAIGN.

Gov. Beckham will take even a more active part in the coming campaign than he did in his race against Mr. Yerkes in 1900. While the Democratic organization generally does not entertain the least doubt as to the result of the election it is proposed, by the way of arousing enthusiasm and making Kentucky Democracy excel itself, to wage such a campaign from one end of the State to the other as was never before seen in Kentucky in a gubernatorial race.

Gov. Beckham will take the field during the last six weeks of the campaign and speak nearly every day and night up to the night before election. A long list of dates, including several great rallies at Louisville, will be prepared by the Campaign Committee soon after it regularly sets about its task. Upon one of his Louisville dates Gov. Beckham and all the other candidates for the other offices and a number of other Democratic orators will speak at the Auditorium. The local candidates will also be present.

TRAGEDY IN CALDWELL.

At Marble mines, near Crider, a very sad tragedy occurred when Lynn Drennan killed his brother Frank, says the Princeton Ledger.

The boys were playing with a single barrel shotgun and Lynn, who is only 13 years of age, pointed the gun at his brother Frank, who is 19, when in some way during the scuffle between the two and another boy the gun went off and the entire load of shot took effect in Frank's breast, near the heart, tearing a hole the size of a silver dollar and causing almost instant death. One witness says the third boy accidentally hit the hammer with a jug, but others deny this.

Both boys were sons of Mrs. Mary Jane Drennan, a widow lady living near the mines, who, with the son Lynn, is grief stricken over the dreadful accident.

Squire Moore, of the Fredonia district, summoned a jury and held an examining trial on the spot immediately after the killing, and decided that it was accidental death, and no blame was attached to the boy who had the gun.

CAPT. EWEN'S TESTIMONY.

In the trial of Jett and White at Cynthiana, B. J. Ewen told the same story of the killing of Jas. B. Marcum that he told on the witness stand at Jackson. He was subjected to a rigid cross-examination by Mr. Golden, of the defense. On cross-examination he admitted to having made false statements about the murder, immediately after Marcum was killed. Asked by Mr. Byrd why he made these statements, Ewen declared that he was afraid he would be killed by Judge James Hargis and Sheriff Ed. Callahan if he told what he knew. Ewen asserts that at a conference with Hargis, Callahan and others Hargis released a story of the murder, to which he tacitly assented, and Hargis said: "Ewen, you are the smartest man on earth," and offered him protection.

BRYAN PARAGRAPHS.

Of course King Peter Whatabianameovitch has his court sized up so he can tell vitch is vitch.

Those cheers for Taylor in the Kentucky Republican state convention are certainly worth something as the foundation of a Roosevelt running mate boom.

Those eastern college football boys who tackled the Kansas and Nebraska wheat bundles may have missed the gingering up applause of the fair co-eds in the grand stand.

General Simon Boliver Buckner sat in a Republican convention in Kentucky as a delegate the other day. The general has merely changed name, not politics.

Of course Cleveland is out of the race now. No man of his age can do justice to a presidential campaign and look after a teething baby.

President Roosevelt announces that hereafter Senator Burton, of Kansas, "will be considered a democrat". If the senator wants to enjoy the approval of a good conscience he will become what the President threatens to consider him.

The Kentucky republican convention cheered the name of ex-Governor Taylor. But Taylor was not present to bow his thanks. He is still in Indiana because the republican governor of that state will not honor a requisition from the governor of Kentucky for the return of Taylor on the charge of being an accomplice in the murder of Governor Goebel. The republican party is evidently hant up for its heroes when it constructs them out of Taylor material.

Big Suit Regarding Mineral Lands Filed in Union County.

A dispatch from Sturgis says: "Harvey S. Bennett, a local Holiness exhorter, prospector and miner, has filed suit against R. F. Bishop, A. J. Winston and other prominent merchants, including his former partner in Illinois with whom he held options on certain lands there, since proved a scam in zinc, spar, etc. Bennett alleges fraud and misrepresentation on the part of his partner in getting him to release his rights and then taking in the local capitalists, who, he alleges, were aware of the scheme before they purchased. The company has received big offers for the property. Bennett is backed in his suit by several wealthy farmers of Crittenden county.

NEGRO DIES.

John Tinsley, the Cause of the Evansville Riot, is Dead.

John Tinsley, alias Lee Brown, the slayer of Officer Louis Massey at Evansville, Ind., on the night of July 3, and the direct cause of the race war in that city, died at the Indiana Reformatory, in Jeffersonville, where he was brought for safe keeping a few days after his crime. The direct cause of Tinsley's death was the bullet fired into his left lung by Officer Massey after he had been fatally wounded, although he suffered an attack of traumatic pneumonia. There was much rejoicing in Evansville over the fiend's death.

What WALTHER'S PEPTONIZED PORT is and does

It is simply a good, honest, common-sense food tonic—a combination of rich Port Wine and Pure Pepsin,—nothing else. It is not a cure-all, or a medicine for acute or chronic diseases.

It does not take the place of the doctor. It does strengthen weak digestive organs, tones and builds up the impaired, impoverished nerves, muscles and blood, and promotes a perfect condition of vigorous health. It is a valuable remedy for dyspepsia, indigestion, and stomach troubles generally—for weakened vitality and impaired strength. It is a preparation of great worth for nursing mothers, tired women, old folks, invalids and convalescents. It is highly recommended by physicians and prescribed by them—both its constituents being of long demonstrated worth.

Two sizes, 50 cts. and $1.00.

Cynthiana seems equal to the occasion.

Senator Gorman's presidential boom is growing apace.

With coal in one hand and lead and zinc ore in the other, Marion holds the key to fortune.

Six wills of the late Gen. C. M. Clay have been offered for probate in the Madison county court.

The Courier-Journal seems to have heard the news that the Marion-Cave-in-Rock railroad will be built.

And still we insist that Marion should have a commercial club. Let the city council take the initiative.

The Eddyville Tale of Two Cities and the Kuttawa Times are getting so hot that they are liable to burn the people who have hold of them.

The negro separated the north and south, and he seems destined to bring them together, unless the mob that is pursuing him southward, stops at the Ohio river.

Rural free delivery service has been ordered over routes aggregating 175 miles in Graves county. The mining camps of Crittenden will soon be of sufficient magnitude to command this service.

A snap shot picture of most any old community in Illinois and Indiana is likely to reveal a fleeing negro, a pursuing mob, with the sheriff and posse giving chase, while the governor is rushing troops to the scene of activity.

If the PRESS were in the Livingston county Senatorial district it would be advocating the nomination of Charlie Grassham for the Senate. He is one of the ablest men in Western Kentucky, worthy of the trust, and as he is not connected with the judicial muddle that has been complicating matters in some of the counties, he would be a pacific factor in that matter.

Ex-President Cleveland will deliver an address as the guest of the Chicago Commercial Club October 14. He has given it out that not a single word of politics will cross his lips. In spite of his speeches, the ex-President's movements talk politics.

Wall Street's chill of a few days ago has not kept nature from going right along as usual, making corn, wheat tobacco, grass and cotton grow, where men has arranged the conditions properly. In fact Wall Street might be cut clear out of it, and this would still be a prosperous country.

A turnpike to Salem would be money to the haulers, or to the miners and shippers of ore; and it would still be a good thing when Salem gets a railroad and we hope that will be soon. There is room a plenty for all the probable railroads and all the towns that are or may be in the district.

The negro as a part of the enlisted force of the United States navy is to be eliminated. Hereafter it is to be the policy of the recruiting agencies of the navy to discourage the enlistment of black men for service on American war vessels. A system of elimination is to be inaugurated, and while it is to be put into operation gradually, it will eventually weed out every negro serving before the mast and the enlisted force of the navy will be composed exclusively of white men.

PRATT AND BLACKBURN.

Mr. Walter A. Blackburn, the well known chief deputy under Dr. A. D. James, here, is being prominently mentioned for the Republican nomination for Commonwealth's Attorney of the 4th Judicial district, composed of the counties of Caldwell, Crittenden, Hopkins and Livingston. Mr. Blackburn was a successful attorney before entering the Marshall's office. He said today that he had been asked to make the race for the nomination, but had not reached any decision in the matter. He has made a fine record in the Government service.

Judge Clifton J. Pratt is being urged to make the race for Judge of the same district. Louisville Times.

NEW POPE.

Cardinal Sarto, of Venice, Succeeds Leo XIII.

ELECTED ON SEVENTH BALLOT

Cardinal Sarto, Patriarch of Venice, was elected Pope to succeed the late Leo XIII, on the seventh ballot taken by the conclave. The election occurred Tuesday morning.

Announcement of Cardinal Sarto's election was received with enthusiasm by the hundreds of persons who had gathered outside of St. Peter's. The scene within the basilica when the Pope pronounced his benediction was one of unparalleled excitement and enthusiasm. Thousands of persons within the cathedral cheered and waved their hats.

Cardinal Giuseppe Sarto was born at Riese, province of Venice, June 12, 1835. He was created a Cardinal and patriarch of Venice, June 12, 1903. He was very learned in the ecclesiastical doctrines, is modest, energetic, a good administrator and organizer, a patron of the arts and his seriousness always has been proverbial.

Cardinal Sarto belonged to the Ecclesiastical Congregation of Bishops and Regulars, Sacred Rites. He enjoyed great popularity in his diocese. He is honored by all for his purity, for the strict uprightness of his life, and for liberal ideas. He is a modest and agreeable man, highly cultivated, very kind hearted, and still strong and robust, in spite of his sixty-eight years. He has not taken great part in the political and public life of the church, but divided his time between study and good works. Although most faithful to the Holy See, he was presented to the King and Queen of Italy in Venice. He was considered among the most liberal members of the Italian Episcopate and Sacred College. It is said that Leo XIII sided with him on one occasion when Sarto disapproved of Rappallo's policy.

The Republicans of the Third Judicial district, in convention at Hopkinsville, nominated Judge James Breathitt for circuit judge.

TRAGEDY IN COUNTY.

John Kemper Kills William Dewees as a Result of Family Trouble—Warrant Out Charging Kemper With Murder.

KEMPER A WELL KNOWN TEACHER.

Tuesday the news of a shooting affair in the lower end of Crittenden county, near Carraville, was received here. According to the report John Kemper, farmer, shot and perhaps fatally wounded, William Dewees, on the farm of Mr. Phil Miles, late Monday afternoon. Kemper fired four shots from a gun, wounding Dewees in the ankle, bowels and shoulder.

Kemper crossed the Ohio into Illinois and his whereabouts are unknown.

The full details are not obtainable at this time. It seems that Kemper had frequently accused Dewees with being too intimate with his Kemper's wife, and had warned him that trouble would follow. On Monday evening about dusk it is alleged that Kemper, armed with a shotgun, went to the home of a man named Belt, living on Phil Miles' farm and asked Belt if Dewees was there. He was told that Dewees was there, and when the latter appeared it is stated that Kemper began firing. He emptied his gun and then reloading fired two more shots.

No arrests have yet been made.

It was reported yesterday morning that Dewees was dead, and at the instance of county attorney Henderson, Mr. D. H. Hardesty filed the necessary information and a warrant, charging Kemper with murder was issued and placed in the hands of the sheriff.

Neither of the men are very well known in this county. Kemper is said to be a prominent school teacher of Livingston county, where, it is said, he has many friends. Nothing can be learned about Dewees.

AT THE CHILDREN'S HOUR

By Willette Provost

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McCutcheon

The room was dark save for the bright gleam from the hearth. In a comfortable armchair before the fire a man reclined. On the rug in front of him a little child was sitting, watching the glowing embers. Over in a dim corner a girl was playing very softly—so softly that the melody seemed to be but a part of the gathering shadows.

"You're awfully quiet tonight, uncle," said the child. "Are you lonesome because you're going away tomorrow?"

"Perhaps that's it, sweetheart. I won't see you for two long months, and I'll miss my little girl dreadfully."

She jumped up from the rug and climbed on his knees, putting her little arms around his neck and kissing him.

"Are you sorry I'm going away?"

"Oh, yes, indeed. No one ever tells me the nice stories you do, Uncle Fred. Won't you please tell me a story now before mother says it's bedtime; just a little one—just a twenty twenty one, about a bear?"

The man paused and glanced at the corner of the room. The music had changed to "Bonnie Sweet Bessie."

"All right," he said. "I will see if I can make up a little story that you will like."

The child pulled his head down close to hers and kissed him. He began:

"Once upon a time there lived two small bears who were playmates. They were very happy and used to dwell in a sort of fairyland all of their own. But by and by the boy bear, who was called Cubbie, was told by his father, Big Bruin, that he was old enough to go away to school. When Cubbie heard this, he went to little Fluffie, his playmate, and told her the awful news, and she tried to comfort him.

"I'll only be for a little while, Cubbie," she said, "and then when you come back I'll be here in the woods just the same, and you'll come to see me."

"Yes," he answered bravely, "and you'll be grown up and stuck up, like all big lady bears, and you'll think yourself too good to talk to me!" And Cubbie began to growl like a real bear.

"Fluffie's big eyes were filled with tears, for Cubbie had never spoken to her so crossly before. 'Why, Cubbie,' she said, 'even if you were away for years and years and years we'd love each other just as much as we do now, wouldn't we?'

"That seemed to comfort him. They were sitting under a favorite tree. He put his arm around her, and when Fluffie's mother came to look for her long after she found that they had fallen asleep in each other's arms."

"The girl at the piano was playing a lullaby."

"Well, Cubbie went away, and when he came back next year he found that Fluffie and her mother had wandered away to live in some other woods, but no one seemed to know where."

"The years passed and Cubbie grew to be a great big, rough bear. He often thought of little Fluffie and wondered what she was like and if she remembered him."

The man paused.

"Go on, Uncle Fred. What did the big boy bear do?" said the child.

"Well, his papa wanted him to stay at home and marry a very beautiful and wealthy little bear, but it was not his little Fluffie; so he said no."

"Then, after a long while, to please his father, who was dying, he promised to ask the beautiful little bear to be his wife. You see, he had almost given up hope of seeing his Fluffie again."

All was silence in the corner by the window. The girl at the piano was listening.

"Fluffie was mean not to have come back, wasn't she, Uncle Fred?"

"Perhaps she couldn't get back," answered the man. "She might have got lost. It must have been that way, for one day she did come back to the old woods."

"Ah, goodie!" exclaimed the child. "I'm glad, aren't you, uncle?"

"Yes, dear, but there was something about her that Cubbie could not understand. He finally came to the conclusion that she did not care for him any more."

The man was gazing earnestly into the fire as he spoke; he seemed to have forgotten the presence of the child. Then he looked down and smiled. She had fallen asleep.

"And that's the end, for Uncle Fred's little girl has gone fast asleep. I wonder if auntie will call mother to put her little girl to bed?"

In response the girl rose from the piano and, coming over to the fire, stood behind him for a moment with her hand resting on the back of his chair.

"I would like to know what this big rough bear is going to do, for pussy may want to know when she wakes in the morning," she asked.

"Oh, live and die an old bachelor and write stories for little ones like Sweetheart here—stories to put them to sleep."

"But I thought you said the bear was going to marry some one."

"That was long ago. The beautiful and wealthy bear," he added, with a smile, "found out in some way that he had asked to marry her only because of his father's dying wish, and she positively refused to do so."

"But supposing Fluffie did not know of this. Supposing she had known he was engaged, but never heard of the breaking of the engagement until today," said the girl gently. "If she had not known, would the big bear have forgiven her for doing as she did?"

A light shone in the man's eyes—a light that revealed a dawning hope.

"Was that the only reason?" he asked quickly. "Was the bear—oh, hang the bears, Fluffie, are you not engaged to some one?"

The girl bent her head and kissed his forehead.

"I don't know," she said. "Am I, dear?"

A Parist.

Most persons believe Stevenson's verses for children may, without correction or amendment, safely be placed in the hands of the impressionable youngster without corrupting either his morals or his English. But there are some who think otherwise, says an exchange.

Little Alice's mother, having taught the child to say "Time to rise," in which "the birdie with a yellow bill" figures, the child announced that she meant to recite it to her teacher.

"Well, and what did Miss Prim say to 'the birdie with a yellow bill?'" asked Alice's mother when the little girl returned from school.

"She says it is quite a pretty thought. But this is the way she makes me say it now, mamma:

"A birdie with a yellow bill
Hopped upon the window sill,
Cocked his shining eye and said,
'Are you not ashamed, you sleepy-head?'"

"But that was not the way the birdie said it, Alice," the mother remonstrated.

"No, mamma, I know. But teacher says it isn't good English to say, 'Alit' you 'shamed, you sleepy-head?'"

Spanish Politeness.

The most perfect example of Spanish politeness was a letter left by the Duke of Marlborough by Don Arroyo de Ayala, a Spanish consul, who committed suicide in Blenheim park on April 14, 1820:

"My Lord—I humbly ask your lordship's pardon and forgiveness for the great liberty I have taken in coming to put an end to my dreary and miserable existence in your park. It may be a childish feeling, but one cannot blow his brains out in a common road or on one of those cultivated fields full of cottages and life and civilization and railways and establishments of all kinds in which your blessed country of England abounds."

I mean no offense. Your manner is one of the most noble, splendid things I ever saw in my life, and I have traveled about and seen everything worth seeing. You have the finest Rubens that can be seen. That should have a great attraction for me under other circumstances, but now they have been of no use. I am your lordship's most obedient servant.

ARMON DE AYALA.

Dancing Dervishes.

A visitor to Constantinople gives this picture of the dancing dervishes: "The worshippers, having divested themselves of their flowing cloaks, stretched out their arms and began to revolve, at first slowly and rhythmically, but gradually warming to it. In a few seconds the hall beneath was alive with a host of figures reeling and twirling round and round with ever increasing rapidity to the weird music of reed flutes and cymbals—both instruments conducive to spiritual exaltation. In a few more seconds their long white robes bulged and expanded like colossal parasols, until the whole mass merged in one immense cloud of calico, while their towering headdresses assumed the appearance of a large congregation of chimney pots suddenly gone whirling mad."

The Cause of the Row.

An Irish undertaker was laying out the deceased husband of a weeping Ulsterman widow. The corpse wore a wig, and it was very difficult to induce it to stay on straight, as wigs ought always to do, even if they don't. The bereaved widow was called in to assist. "Go on! git me a pot of glue, Mrs. McGovern," said the undertaker, "so that I may keep his wig where it belongs."

Mrs. McGovern set out after the sticking material and after a time she returned. "Here is the glue for ye," she said, with a sigh.

"Mrs. McGovern, you kin take back the glue," said the undertaker. "The difficulty is fixed. I used a bad glue."

And that was what caused the row, Bradford Era.

GEMS IN VERSE

The Dandelion.

He smoothed with pride his yellow hair
He liked its color, vain young chap.
And filled his pockets with its seed.
She tucked hers in her snowy cap.
"Oh, ho!" he cried. "My hair's as thick
I couldn't do that if I tried."
"You'd keep it longer if you did,"
The lady, with a smile, replied.
Alas, her words were all too true.
For, left uncovered day and night,
The sun and rain beat on his head
And turned his golden locks to white.
And soon a dreadful thing occurred,
At which the ladies looked appalled—
A blustering wind swept by, and lo!

No. 10 in Her Wedding Gown.

Here's a picture of my mother in her wedding gown. Ah, no
I wonder if there ever was a fairer bride than she.
And a picture of her forehead, not a line disrupting fate
Can be traced upon her features. What a wealth of wavy hair fell away from her fair temples! And the smile she wore that day
Was the smile of one whose sorrows still were lurking far away.

I can fancy that my father, as he gazed upon her then,
Must have held his head up proudly, favored or all other men.
And, beholding the sweet beauty of the face depicted here,
I imagine I can see him, young and ardent, standing near—
I have loved—and I now see him as he caught her to his breast
When the strength of youth was in him and his lips on hers were pressed.

The picture of my mother, taken on her wedding day,
Shows the face of one whose sorrows were all lurking far away,
And a fairer bride than she has never claimed a man.
Yet there's one whose smile is sweeter than her smile was long ago,
One whose brow has many furrows proudly looks sometimes on me,
And I see the fondest, gladdest smile a man may hope to see.

Let's take a day in the country; cities are growing so fast
They shut out the life giving sunshine and all the blue sky overhead.
Let's take the road to the woodlands, far from the fever and rush,
Lulled by the ripple of rivers and the silvery song of the thrush.

Let's take a day in the country; all the green meadows we know,
The hum of the wild honeybees, the banks where the violets grow;
The mulberry trees by the home place,
The maple leaves twinkling with dew,
The breeze bending all the glad branches that bow a "good morning" to you!

Let's take a day in the country; birds,
bees and bloom—hear them call!
Life is not found by the cities, and the gold that we glean is not all!
Farewell the desk and the counter, welcome the vine arched porch,
And a rollicking time, like the old times, with the barefooted boys in the branch!

Slightly Negligent.

A quack who had attended a man during several weeks of illness called one day and presented his bill.
"I can't pay this," said the ex-patient.

"Why? It's correct."
"I don't doubt it, but I haven't a money; had to pay a life insurance premium this morning, and that I every penny I had."

"What! Is your life insured?"
"Yes, and at one time, when I did not expect to live but a few hours longer, I told my wife to see that you were paid just as soon as the company paid the amount of the insurance."

"My dear sir," the bogus doctor positively replied, "I wish I had known that. I think I would have got a money!"—Illustrated Elks.

Gossipy Letters From All Sections of the County.

NEW SALEM.

This section has been blessed with fine rains which insure us a good old fashioned corn crop, and everybody is thankful.

A cave-in at the fire clay mines one night last week gave some of the miners a scare that will last them for many a day. Fortunately no one happened to be under the part that fell in.

Charley Millican and family, of Livingston county, are guests of Robert Mahan.

Stock buyers are plentiful since the rain. It is strange what a good rain will do in this trading world of ours.

Richard and Miss Blanche Bebout, of Sheridan, were the guests of Misses Harpending Saturday and Sunday.

Some of the men engaged in hauling clay have undoubtedly missed their calling; they should have been steamboat mates if old fashion cussing goes for anything.

We understand that Col. Roberts has an option on the property of Mrs. Lee White. The indications are that this property is one of the most valuable in this section. John Harpending with a force of hands will commence work on this property the first of the week.

Jos. Pace had the misfortune to lose by death, a valuable mare.

BIG LAND SWINDLE.

A fraudulent Chicago concern is reported to have operated an extensive swindle in Breathitt county lands, selling worthless deeds to imaginary tracts of land for the consideration of $5 a tract. E. L. Noble, a deputy county clerk, and J. E. Spicer, a deputy sheriff, who are suspected of complicity in the swindle, left Jackson some time ago without any notice to their friends, and nothing definite has been heard from them since their departure. It is alleged that Spicer collected "back taxes" from victims who had invested in the worthless titles and that Noble assessed the purchasers exorbitant fees for recording the worthless deeds.

AIDS TO HAPPINESS.

The Time When Help, Kindness and Sympathy Count Most.

It is during the formative period, the time when a man is seeking to get a foothold, that help counts for most, when even the slightest aid is great. A few looks lent to Andrew Carnegie when he was beginning his career were to him an inspiration. He has nobly repaid the debt; made positively his debtor a millionaire by his beneficence in sprinkling libraries over the whole country. Help the saplings, the young growing trees of vision, the mighty oaks have no need of your aid.

The heartening words should come when needed, not when they seem only hypocritical protestations or distressing preparations for future favors. Columbus, surrounded by his mutinous crew, threatening to kill him, alone amid the crowd, had no one to stand by him, but he heeded not, and he opened before them. Then they fell in his feet, proclaimed him almost a god and said he truly was inspired from heaven. Successes, triumphs, honors, a long line of petty honors and a few trees made him divine. A little patience along the way, a little cheer, companionship, a little brotherly love in his hours of watching, waiting and hoping, would have been great help to his soul.

It is in childhood that pleasures count most, when the slightest movement of kindness brings largest returns. Let us give the children sun, light, love, companionship, sympathy with their little troubles and worries that seem to them so great, genuine interest in their growing bodies, their vague, unexpressed dreams and yearnings. Let us put ourselves into their places, view the world through their eyes so that we may gently correct the errors of their perspective by our greater wisdom. Such trifles will make them genuinely happy, happier by far than things a thousand times greater that come too late. From "The Power of Truth," by William George Jordan, Published by Brentano's.

Spoken.

Feline amenities show themselves most forcibly at committee meetings. There was one of these latter gathered together to discuss a charity bazaar. The chairman smiled sweetly upon the artist's wife and said:

"You'll get your husband to let us have some little thing of his for the bazaar, will you not, Mrs. Mahistek?"

"Well, you know husbands are not always easily managed, my dear."

"Ah, but take him after one of your nice dinners and then put in a word for our worthy cause. But remember we are not allowed to have anything which sells for over $25."

"Indeed?" And then Mrs. M.'s eyes brows went up alarmingly. "Then perhaps he'll induce one of his pupils to dash off something for you."—New York Times

Painting Animals' Eyes.

One of the most difficult things which the artists and taxidermists of the government studio have to do is the painting and preparation of glass eyes for the mammals, birds and reptiles mounted at that institution for exhibition in the National museum.

These "eyes" are made of glass, hollow within and from the rear, so that the inner surface may be painted any color desired. As no two animals' eyes are alike and as the colors are often complicated and unusual, it requires a great deal of skill, study and practice before one is competent to undertake the work.

Life Saving Superstition.

The superstitious villager is often laughed to scorn, but a miner in north Wales is just now thanking his lucky stars that he believes in omens. He was toiling under some coal and was startled by seeing a rat scuttling away. He walked away from the spot, and directly afterward a large fall of coal occurred just over the place where the man had been working.—London Standard.

The Beggar's Sign.

Smith (seeing beggar hearing sign reading, "Heaf and Tumb")—"I'd like to help this poor fellow, but I don't know how to tell whether he is really deaf and dumb."

He Knew.

"This is rather an unusual hour for you to be going to lunch. Not hungry so early, are you?"

"No, but I will be by the time the waiter condescends to notice me."—Exchange.

BUOYANT MIDDLE AGE.

It Builies Jovially With Youth In These Progressive Days.

Half a century ago a man of forty-five was regarded almost elderly, and a woman of the same age was expected to have long shiny cut herself adorned from all ties hindering her to her youth and to assume the appearance and deportment of a staid, exemplary matron. All this has changed in a particularly interesting way, of which the prominent feature is a seeming contradiction. If the three-year-old child of today is as knowing as was the six-year-old of half a century ago and the ten-year-old boy of today is in many respects quite as much a man as was his grandfather at eighteen, one might naturally expect that in due gradation the modern middle aged man should be out beyond his years. But such is not the case.

Middle age, so far from hurrying on into senility, so far even from standing still, would seem actually to have stepped backward and marched along, side of youth. There is a jauntiness, a buoyancy, an elasticity, about the middle age of today at which our fathers would have shaken their heads as reasonably. The gulf which once separated the middle aged parent from his children has been filled up. The curtain which shrouded the middle aged man generally from the eyes of youth and which caused him to be regarded with respect if not with awe has been lifted, and in obedience to the same influences which have made the schoolmaster the friend of the schoolboy and the regimental officer almost the comrade of his men the middle aged man of today is never so happy as when working or playing upon an equality and actually in connection with youth.

As with men so it is with women. Social statisticians tell us that the age at which women are considered most eligible for marriage has been very notably advanced of late years, and we know that the lament of many a matchmaking mamma is that the most dreaded rivals of her darling are not to be found so much among the girls of her own age as among women who not many years ago would have been relegated to the ranks of hopeless old maidhood. The fact that the middle aged lady of today is much younger in manner and tastes is of course not the only reason for this, but it is among the most potent.—London Spectator

A Very Strange Intervention.

In a church where the prayers are made at the discretion of the minister very strange interventions are sometimes presented. I remember well once hearing old Mr. Blair of Glasgow, who was a real though eccentric genius in his day and of whom an English reader ever heard, relate an incident which had been in his own knowledge. "Mr. Smith was preaching at Drumcree, and he had come to the concluding prayer, where we pray for all and sundry also, when he suddenly remembered that he had forgotten to pray for the magistrates. So he put in the prayer just where he was, 'I have mercy upon all fools and idiots and especially upon the magistrates of Drumcree.' He meant no evil, but the magistrates were not pleased."—Loughman's Magazine.

Playthings in Court.

Some very curious models have from time to time been produced in court in various lawsuits. There was a model of a mill produced lately in a patent case where the patentee claimed his patent to have been infringed. The patent was in connection with some part of the machinery of the mill. The model was set working in court while judge and counsel watched its movements with much interest. A model steam engine was once produced in an action against a railway company. The judge insisted on having the whole working of the engine explained to him, whereupon the counsel who was speaking asked for an adjournment of the trial for twelve months when he would be able to give the required explanation.—London Teller

How to Remove Stones From Land.

Large rocks should be heated by burning a quantity of brush on each one, and then with a good heavy sled and steel wedges most of them can be split into fragments that can be hauled off upon the drag. Medium sized rocks may be drawn out by digging round them, fastening a log chain upon the lower side and attaching the chain to the horses start slowly, and with a bit of effort the stone may be pulled out at the second or third pull. A good way to get rid of stones is to bury them, but bury them deep not less than three feet from the surface so that they will be certain to work up to the top in a few years, when the work has to be done over again at considerable cost.

Nothing to Show For It.

"Say, doctor, what's that last $3 item in your bill for?"

"Let me see. Oh, yes; I gave you a thorough examination on that day. Don't you remember?"

"Sure I remember. But do you suppose I am going to pay you for that when you took up an hour of my time and then couldn't find anything the matter with me after all?"—Buffalo Express.

The Acme of Meekness.

McJigger—Chicken hearted? Well, I should say; he's the limit.

Thingumbob—Is that so?

McJigger—Nothing can make him fight. Why, I've even seen him in a man cheat him out of his turn in the barber shop, and he never said a word.
